ANNOUNCEMENTS.

For Circuit Judge.
 We are authorized to announce W. T. OWEN, of Davies county, as a candidate for Circuit Judge in the sixth judicial district, subject to the action of the Democratic party, at the primary election, November 4, 1920.

We are authorized to announce T. F. BIRKHEAD, of Davies county, as a candidate for Circuit Judge in the sixth judicial district, subject to the action of the Democratic party, at the primary election, November 4, 1920.

For Commonwealth's Attorney.
 Ben D. Ringo, of Ohio county, is a candidate for Commonwealth's Attorney for the Sixth Judicial District, subject to the action of the Democratic party at the primary election to be held November 4, 1920.

THE PEOPLE AND THE MONEY QUESTION.

As to whether the next National Democratic Convention will endorse or advocate "free silver" in any form, remains to be seen. Most likely it will, as the Democratic party has always been in favor of bimetallism. It was more the specific ratio than anything else, that has split the party in recent years. Many bolting Democrats were for bimetallism, even upon the meaningless question of "free silver," but they could not get the consent of their minds to endorse the arbitrary ratio of 16 to 1. That was the opening wedge and it entered deep.

The Democratic National Platform of 1892 had plenty of bimetallism in it, but there was no specific ratio named. It simply outlined a consistent financial course upon a bimetallic basis and let the voters choose between that plan and some others put forth by political parties. The voters seemed to be pleased with the specificity of it, as upon that platform the Democrats elected their President by an overwhelming plurality. When the ratio of 16 to 1 was endorsed in the platform of the Democrats, it created alarm among party men and upon the part of the public, as to the probable result of such a law, rigidly administered, upon our national finances. Many bimetallists fled the party when their pet theory was made to mean a ratio of specifically 16 to 1 as between the two metals.

The American people are as chary of arbitrariness and specialness as they are of excesses. They do not believe in extremes in any direction. They are conservative to a degree, and are willing to let matters remain as they are, if endurable, even though unsatisfactory, rather than fasten their faith to something that binds them to a declaration that is neither modified or restricted by conditions or exceptions. This has been tried out and proven time and again. The Declaration of Independence and the Constitution of our country, which insure every man freedom of speech and action, under the law, seem to have imbued the American people with a sense of independence and frankness which warns against the advisability of unreserved commitment to any theory or thing. Of course there are always plenty of persons intrepid enough to dare the fate by rash action, which many times prove to be the best under the circumstances, but conservatism has always been a dominant characteristic of the American people, and it will perhaps continue to be. After a thing has been once tried and found to be good, nobody can beat the average American in his firm allegiance to that thing, but the untried project—well, he would rather suffer awhile and let somebody else try it first.

Many men shouted for "free silver" and "16 to 1," who had scarcely a clear idea as to what these terms meant, and while they did and do mean something tangible and altogether worthy of support, it has been found that a majority of the American people are averse to a financial change just at present, and you can scarcely interest a man in a movement which he is not in favor of or cares little about. It is only a matter in which people are interested that can be made or constitutes an issue.

The Democratic leaders will do well to take note of the present attitude of the party laity, and of the American public in general. All party declarations should be made in accord with existing demands. It is said that there is a certain tie in the affairs of men which, if taken at the flood, leads on to fortune. History has demonstrated that the political parties, as well as men, are subject to this influence. It seems to be generally admitted that at present the Democratic organization stands upon the brink of this splendid opportunity.

COMMENTING upon the arrangement for a Democratic primary for this Judicial District, the Hartford Republican says:

A few hundred dollars worth of ballot boxes, paid for out of the public funds, for which there will not be a use again in a generation, will remain a perpetual memorial of Democratic sacrifice and the public good for party gain. It is by nipping in the bud schemes like this that the taxpayers can make their rights respected by party bosses.

We take it for granted—at least we hope—that the editor of the Republican is posted upon so simple a matter as the election law, and we cannot understand why he should try to deceive the public in any such manner. It is a matter of fact with which almost everybody is familiar that the expense of party primaries is paid by the candidates themselves. The tax-payers nor the public pay not a cent of it. It is due that the Republican correct this groundless assertion.

ANOTHER warning cry is raised towards Ohio county farmers and others who contemplate moving to the "far West," in the Texas letter of Prof. E. W. Patterson, on the first page of THE HERALD to-day. Prof. Patterson says that country in which he is sojourning does not present an encouraging prospect for the agriculturists. The farmers, he says, "are not discouraged," but between the lines one can read a story of withered crops and gloomy prospects, which speak warningly of the real condition of affairs there. We have not heard lately of any farmer leaving this section for a better location, and we hope these warnings sounded now and then are sufficient to convince our people that it often proves unwise to leave old Kentucky for a better livelihood.

 From the HARTFORD HERALD, one of the best weekly papers that reaches our exchange table, we clip the following:

We sincerely hope that the Kentucky Press Association, which meets in Owensboro the fourth week in July, will get back in a measure, at least, to its old moorings, and assume the duties of professional collaboration and business advancement for which it was instituted. Of late years the Association has been little more than a pleasure jaunt, in which only those who are financially able are permitted to participate. Even on this jaunt many have gone as representatives who never wrote an article for a newspaper or would know a composing stick from an em quad. Fun and recreation are all right, and by nobody more badly needed than the editor, but this happy occupation should not be permitted to monopolize the whole proceedings. The Association should be reorganized, so that the whole Kentucky press, whether affluent or not, could participate with every assurance of mutual and lasting benefit.

There is much of truth and hard common-sense in the above, which is only a plain statement of a fact that has been apparent to Kentucky newspaper men for several years past. The Kentucky Press Association was organized for the purpose of affording the newspaper men of the State a means of meeting together to discuss matters pertaining to their profession and for the betterment of the conditions which surround the men who work to print the papers that make the towns and counties in which they are published what they are. The annual meetings of the Press Association were once looked forward to with great interest by members of the craft on account of the benefit derived by the editors from meeting together and discussing subjects of interest to all, but of late years outsiders have crept in, until they outnumber two to one the bona fide newspaper men present, and the proceedings are of small interest or benefit to anybody.

The newspaper men of Kentucky owe it to themselves to see to it that the Kentucky Press Association is restored to its former usefulness and made to serve the purposes for which it was created, or it will soon die of dry rot.

Prison Commissioner J. M. Richardson, besides being one of the most versatile and entertaining editors on the Kentucky press, is a descriptive writer of rare ability. His letters written from the Eddyville Penitentiary, with whose workings he is thoroughly familiar, give a true and touching insight into the State's great prison, and reveal interesting incidents which the outside world knows little about.

Miss Etta Stark, an Elizabethtown school girl, has recently come into prominence by a splendidly written essay upon the subject of good roads, which was published by a New York paper that offered $200 for the best article on the subject. If we can only get our Kentucky girls earnestly interested on the subject of good roads, we feel confident that in the near future we shall be walking on macadam.

It is said that Senator Hanna is bothered so much with rheumatism that he cannot stand upon his feet to make a speech. Notwithstanding this affliction, however, it is quite generally understood that he is standing for the next Republican nomination for President, which will necessitate a long while of perpendicular waiting.

The astrologers of this country are predicting dire calamities for this month. The forecasts include storms on sea and land, trouble for farmers and owners of all public buildings, especially pleasure resorts and school houses. The star-readers seem to think it will be about the most generally unfortunate month in the whole year.

Mr. H. E. Woolfolk, of the Danville Advocate, and one of the most popular editors on the Kentucky press, has been compelled by ill health to retire from the active management of his paper. His co-laborers in the journalistic field wish him a speedy return to health and work.

Admiral Dewey and many other competent judges have earnestly declared and still maintain that the Philippines are more capable of self-government than the Cubans. Therefore, why should we longer refuse to treat both peoples alike?

The young man who assures his sweetheart that he "loves the very ground she walks on," is most always sincere in his remarks—provided his eyes are cast towards the family real estate.

It seems that too many fellows are trying to play upon the Democratic harmonica. Such music creates discord.

Kentucky's War Claim.
 Owing to the failure last week of the Auditor of the War Department to certify Kentucky's war claim, amounting to $1,346,000, this item was not included in the Deficiency Appropriation Bill. The Auditor's failure to certify the account was due to the discovery that it must first be approved by the Reviewing Officer of the Treasury Department. Senator Blackburn and Congressman Smith have been assured that the item will be included next December in the Urgent Deficiency Appropriation Bill. The question is being discussed as to what use the State should put the money, and it is said that Gov. Beckham and a majority of the Sinking Fund Commission favor applying it to the extinction of the State's bonded indebtedness, which amounts to $1,000,000.

Mr. Bryan's Tribute to Ollie James.
 In the last issue of the Commonwealth Editor William Jennings Bryan pays the following tribute to Ollie James, the Democratic nominee for Congress in the First District of Kentucky:
 Ollie James, the Democratic candidate for Congress in the First District of Kentucky, is a splendid illustration of what a young man with ability, integrity, and moral courage can accomplish. Although but thirty years old, Mr. James has become a conspicuous figure in the politics of his State, and he is now entering the arena of national politics, his nomination in that strongly Democratic District being equivalent to an election.

Mr. James' rise began in the great inter-party contest which preceded the convention of 1896. When some of our leaders allowed the bankers and corporations to draw them away from the masses, Mr. James stepped to the front and espoused the cause of the people; and so unwavering has been his service that he has now been selected to champion the people's rights in the federal legislature.

The fact of Mr. James receiving and accepting an invitation to speak at the Nebraska State convention held at Grand Island June 24, indicates that this Kentucky orator is already in demand outside of his home State. Mr. James' style of speaking is impressive and persuasive. He acquaints himself with public questions and speaks from his own deep convictions, reaching the hearts of those who listen.

We refer in this manner to Mr. James because his career illustrates the possibilities which open before the young men of this country.

The law passed at the last session of the Legislature in regard to persons selling cigarettes and cigarette paper went into effect June 17. The law provides that anyone exposing for sale these articles at retail must pay a license of $10. The clerk's fee for issuing the license is $1.50. The penalty for non-compliance with the law is a fine of not less than $50 nor more than $1,000. Wholesale dealers are required to pay a license of $100.

A. R. Bass, of Morgantown, Ind., had to get up ten or twelve times in the night and had severe backache and pains in the kidneys. Was cured by Foley's Kidney Cure. All druggists.

KENTUCKY EDITORS' Comments on Various Topics of the Day.

BAD MARKSMANSHIP.
 (Paducah Sun.)

A Bowling Green man threw a stove lid at his wife and killed his mother-in-law. It was either another case of mother-in-law always being in the way or else of beastly bad marksmanship.

WHAT THE FLAG COVERS.
 (Nelson Record.)

"Children, what is that flag hanging upon the wall for?" asked the visitor at the country school. "T' cover up a hole in th' wall," shrilled a boy who knew. There are many indications that the o. p. is hanging out the flag for the purpose of covering up a lot of holes.

VOTES IN SELF-DEFENSE.
 (Mayfield Mirror.)
 The American voter has learned that a high protective tariff has never benefited the people, and that it has benefited a privileged clique at the expense of the public. His vote against a high tariff is a vote against the trusts it fosters, and therefore a vote in self-defense.

THE BREAD RETURNED.
 (Elizabethtown News.)
 Through the will of a California friend, J. Proctor Knott has received $3,000. This is one of the results of casting your bread upon the waters, as Mr. Knott once did the Californian a favor and although the favor was rendered more than fifteen years ago, it was never forgotten.

TURN THE BOYS LOOSE.
 (Hopkinsville Independent.)
 Our sympathy goes out to the boy of tender years who is forced to wear hot shoes and stockings through the summer to satisfy the pride of a parent who would sacrifice comfort to appearance. It is torture to the lad and a useless expense to the parent. Let the boys be boys, with freedom of feet and comfort of limb.

ANIMALS OF THE VISION.
 (Fairview Review.)
 At a "special" entertainment held recently in a church at Louisville one part of the program was: "The Song I First Heard in Heaven—Bore." That is the first positive information we ever had of the name of one of the three beasts St. John in his vision on the Isle of Patmos saw in Heaven. As the world grows older it gets wiser in some things.

May Not Be Crowned.
 NEW YORK, June 30.—The Journal has the following cablegram from London:

It is intimated that London need not be surprised if the King, after his recovery, decides to forego the coronation ceremony which is not constitutionally necessary.

If he so decides he will not be the only uncrowned King in Europe, for a majority of the living potentates have been crowned.

The Czar and Emperor Francis are crowned Kings, but few other living monarchs have received this symbol of sovereignty.

The new King of Saxony has not had time to get crowned, even if he intends to, which is doubtful.

William II, the German Emperor and King of Prussia, has been on the throne four years without being crowned, either as Kaiser or King.

Other living sovereigns who have been crowned include the Kings of Italy and Spain, the Queen of the Netherlands and the Sultan.

King Edward has been known to ponder over the prophecies of fortune-tellers, palmists, clairvoyants, &c., and many his present illness are an omen that he is trifling with fate if he persists in his ambition to be crowned.

Indiana Tornado.
 Returns indicate that the tornado which swept across the State of Indiana from southwest to northeast, last week, was the most destructive storm that has visited the State since 1877.

The path of destruction extends for about fifteen miles and varies in width from three to six miles. In this path factories are wrecked, houses are unroofed and blown from their foundations, windows and doors crushed by the weight of the wind, thousands of acres of growing crops were torn to pieces by the wind or cut into shreds by the hail, and barns were demolished.

Cattle were killed and injured, machinery was wrecked, forests were twisted and bent and broken by the fury of the gale, and telegraph and telephone poles were snapped off and the wires scattered in fearful confusion along the highway and the lines of the railways.

Great as the damage was, and tense the fury of the storm, it is remarkable that only two persons were killed—Jas. Van Hoy, a young man crushed in a falling barn at Pendleton, and James Bailey, a farmer, caught in the wreck at McCordsville.

A conservative estimate of the total damage in the path of the storm places it in the neighborhood of $1,500,000.

EVANSVILLE, IND., June 29.—Clarence Goedde, Andy Goedde and Christ Langel were the only three killed in the tornado that struck St. Wendel early last evening. The injured will all recover. Hundreds of people visited the scene of the cyclone this afternoon.

The three victims were taken to the only undertaking establishment at St. Wendel to-day and prepared for burial. Old man Goedde and Clarence, father and son, will be buried in one grave. The storm in Spencer county was the worst in years, and the property loss was considerable. The only life lost was that of Samuel Bertrum.

Remarkable was the escape of Mrs. Frank Goedde in the St. Wendel cyclone last night. When the storm came upon Mrs. Goedde was seated at the supper table with her husband, brother and uncle, Clarence Goedde. The farm hand, Christ Langel, was also at the table.

The house was totally demolished and old man Goedde, Andy Goedde, and Langel were killed outright, their bodies being terribly mangled. Mrs. Goedde was holding her little six-months-old baby and escaped without a scratch. The child was unhurt.

Her husband received slight injuries about the head and shoulders, but it is thought he will recover.

Mrs. Goedde had spoken of the black clouds early in the afternoon and had predicted a cyclone. She wanted the occupants of the house to take refuge in the cellar, and they jokingly remarked that they were not afraid of a little wind. The wife of Clarence Goedde became unconscious when she heard of her husband's death and has not yet revived. She was visiting at the house of a neighbor when the cyclone struck the town.

Great Storm in Eastern Kentucky.
 BURGIN, Ky., June 29.—A terrific storm swept through this region last night, leaving devastation in its wake, a regular water-spout accompanying the wind. Telephone poles were twisted off at the ground, and grain fields swept clean of all sheaves.

Robinson Row, a small village was almost wholly demolished, several houses having been carried clear away, while others were lifted from their foundations and the occupants of many being injured considerably.

Dr. E. G. Gentry, of this place, who was making a professional call there, was caught in the whirl, his buggy being swept away and demolished, while he was severely bruised. Curd's stock barn was carried away and several head of mules killed.

Lambert's residence just outside of the corporation limits was demolished, and he was badly injured. The damages will run up into the thousands.

She Didn't Wear a Mask.
 But her beauty was completely hidden by sores, blotches and pimples till she used Bucklen's Arnica Salve. Then they vanished, as with all Eruptions. SCHROADER SCHOOL HOUSE, KY.
 (Special to THE HERALD.)
 June 30.—The present rains have done much good to the crops in this vicinity.

The Sunday school at this place is progressing nicely.

Mr. Seth Moseley, of Hartford, was in our town one day last week.

Mr. Pete Kessinger's new residence is about completed.

Miss Lottie Deavers, of Cromwell, Ky., visited in this vicinity last week.

A large crowd from this place attended the Dundee Barbecue last Saturday.

There will be an ice cream supper given at Mr. Frank Gray's next Saturday night.

Mrs. Amanda Crowe, of Evansville, Ind., is visiting relatives near this place at this writing.

There was a social given at the residence of Mr. E. L. Boswell Sunday night which was highly enjoyed by all who attended.

Mr. J. D. Johnston, of Sulphur Springs, was in our vicinity Sunday.

Mr. Wilburn Dever, who has been at work in Davies county, returned home last week.

Mr. J. H. Gray went to Hartford to-day on business.

Mother Always Keeps it Handy.
 My mother suffered a long time from distressing pains and general ill health due primarily to indigestion," says L. W. Spalding, Verona, Mo. "Two years ago I got her to try Kodol. She grew better at once and now, at the age of seventy-six, eats anything she wants, remarking that she fears no bad effects, as she has a bottle of Kodol handy. She would time doctoring symptoms. Go after the cause. If your stomach is sound, your health will be good. Kodol restores the stomach and strengthens the body by digesting your food. It is nature's own tonic. J. H. Williams."

FRIEDLAND, KY.

(Special to THE HERALD.)
 June 30.—Born to the wife of J. B. Allen, a fine girl, Dr. Lawless, of Horse Branch, attending physician. Wife and child doing well.

Quite a large crowd from this place attended the picnic at Dundee Saturday. Cane Run singing class was awarded the gold medal for being the best class on the grounds.

There was a large crowd at old Salem last Sunday to attend Children's Day. There was plenty to eat and plenty left. It was a grand success.

We are having plenty of rain in this section now and crops are looking fine. Mrs. S. M. Hoover is on the sick list at this writing.

Miss Lou Hoover is on the sick list. Rev. G. J. Bean, of Hartford, attended Children's Day at Salem and gave an interesting talk. Bro. Walsh, Dr. Godsey, and Rev. Romans also gave interesting talks.

The third Sunday in July will be Children's Day at Cane Run church. Everybody is invited. There will be plenty to eat on the ground free for all. Come, everybody and hear the best class in the county sing. There will be able speakers for the occasion.

Killed Herself With a Shotgun.

MADISONVILLE, Ky., June 30.—Additional details concerning the suicide of Mrs. Mollie Littlepage, wife of John Littlepage, near Schreave, have reached here. She shot herself with a gun. Mrs. Littlepage, after nursing a sick sister through the night, returned to her home after early breakfast to milk her cow. She attended to this duty carefully, attending to the milk, as was her custom, after which she took a shotgun from the rack. She seated herself on the floor at a proper distance from the wall, against which she placed the breech of the gun, with the muzzle to her breast. With a window stick she pressed the trigger and the fatal deed was done.

A Poor Millionaire

June Snow Stalls Train in Pennsylvania.
 (Williamsport, Pa., Telegram to the Philadelphia North American.)
 Trainsmen on the Northern Central railroad, running between this city and Elmira, report that on Tuesday evening two inches of snow fell between Pennry and Boaring Branch.

A freight train ascending the mountain got stalled on account of the snow on the tracks and the trainsmen got off the cars and engaged in a snowball battle. Conductor Farrington, of Ralston, had charge of the train. The ground was as completely covered with snow as in the dead of winter.

A NOTED PHYSICIAN

Makes an Important Statement of Interest to All Women.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—The honest, intelligent physician is above the 'School.' Whatever is best in each case should be used, no matter to what school a physician belongs. I, as a matter of conscience, can only prescribe the best, and as I know and have proven that there is nothing in Materia Medica which equals Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in severe cases of female disorders, I unhesitatingly prescribe it, and have never yet been sorry. I know of nothing better for ovarian troubles and for falling of the womb or ulcerations; it absolutely restores the affected parts to their normal condition quicker and better than anything else. I have known it to cure barrenness in women, who to-day are happy mothers of children, and while the medical profession looks down upon 'patents,' I have learned, instead, to look-up to the healing power, by whatever name it is known. If my fellow physicians dared tell the truth, hundreds of them would voice my sentiments."—Dr. W. W. WATSON, Lansing, Mich.
